SEC provides information regarding the Reports on Acquisition or Disposition of Securities (Form 246-2) in the case of Miss Supaporn Pimphong

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) announces the results of its examination regarding the Reports on Acquisition or Disposition of Securities (Form 246-2), comprising seven Form 246-2 reports covering six securities related to acquisitions of securities at different times since 2021. These reports were submitted through the Form 246-2 reporting system on 30 June 2026 and 2 July 2026. Upon detecting irregularities, the SEC initially designated the information as "Preliminary Version" on 3 July 2026. Subsequently, on 7 July 2026, the SEC updated the status of the information to "Under Verification" due to inconsistencies in the reported information. Following further examination that found the reported information to be inaccurate and confirmation received from the relevant listed companies on 8 July 2026, the SEC removed these reports from the Form 246-2 reporting system. In this regard, the SEC places importance on information disclosed for investment decision-making purposes and follows established procedures to identify the status of information and remove such information from the system when inaccuracies are found.

The key findings regarding the inaccuracies in the reported information are summarized as follows:

1. The reporting person's name did not appear in the share register books on the relevant record dates following the reported acquisitions, and no disposition of the securities was reported.
2. The types of securities reported as having been acquired did not exist during the period specified in the reports.
3. The reported holdings or acquisitions of securities did not reflect actual transactions.

For example, a reported exercise of warrants to purchase shares corresponded to the exercise of convertible debentures by another person.

With respect to the Form 246-2 reporting system, the SEC has established an identity verification process. Any person wishing to submit information into the system is required to register and provide personal information that matches the information contained in the civil registration database maintained by the Department of Provincial Administration. The system verifies the information against such civil registration database, and registration will be rejected if the information does not match. Only where the information matches will the registrant be required to complete identity verification through a one-time password (OTP) sent to the registrant's telephone number. Upon successful completion of the registration process, the registrant may submit information for Form 246-2 reporting. The reporting person is required to certify that the information provided is complete, accurate, and truthful, and to acknowledge that such information will be disclosed to the public.

In addition, the SEC's examination found that the reporting person had submitted reports of securities acquisitions under Section 59 (Form 59) despite not being a director, executive, or other person subject to reporting obligations under that section. The SEC has therefore removed such information from the system. The Form 59 reporting system incorporates a registration and identity verification process similar to that of the Form 246-2 reporting system.

With regard to legal enforcement, the matter is currently at the stage where the persons concerned are being requested to provide information and clarification in accordance with the SEC's procedures. The submission of false information or information that may cause a material misunderstanding to the SEC, where such information is publicly disclosed, may constitute an offence under Section 302/1 of the Securities and Exchange Act B.E. 2535 (1992).

Note: Section 302/1 Any person who submits a copy or presents a bank account, a document or evidence which contains a false statement or a statement which is misleading about a material particular or conceals material facts that should have been presented to the competent official or the SEC Office shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year and a fine not exceeding one hundred thousand baht.
